

BY THE HEARTSTONE.

The heartstone is a warm and bright,
And glows with a golden light,
I found it in the heart of a man,
And I found it in the heart of a woman,
That to build man's best estate,
We link our joys, our loves, our fate,
With mother, sister, wife, lover,
Those words, when used to home and heaven,
The sweetest are to mortals given."

SWEET, BUT CHILLY.

The sweet when lovers close,
To huddle in bed,
And snuggle up beneath the quilt,
To rest the weary head.
But one thought chills the joy
With forebodings dire—
When Aurora glows the eastern sky,
Who'll build the kitchen fire?
—Three States.

A WAGER WON.

The checker board was nearly cleared,
I held her kings in check—
She had but two, and those appeared
No way to save the wreck.
By moving every piece I could
Afford the maid a chance,
While still in this morose mood
I met her fearful glance.
Sweet girl, she's staked a kiss in jest,
Presuming on her skill,
And she had played her very best,
But was against her will.
A rose blushed spread over her face
Of lovely maiden shame;
I loved my hand, moved back a pace,
And let her win the game.
Dear girl, she saw the way I'd found
To spare her then—what's this?
Two arms about my neck were wound
And I received my kiss.
"You are too generous," then said I,
"I'll not be selfish," then said I,
"I'll not be selfish," then said I,
I gave it back again.

A BUILDER'S LESSON.

"How shall I build a habit?"
As you did that habit make,
As you gathered, you must lose;
As you yielded, now return.
Threat by threat the strands we twist,
Till they bind us, neck and wrist;
Threat by threat the patient hand
Must untwine, ere free we stand;
As we build, stone by stone,
We must toil, unrelenting,
Till the wall is unbroken,
But remember as we try,
Lighter every tool goes by;
Wading in the streams grow deep,
Toward the center's downward sweep;
Backward turn, each step ashore
Shallower is than that before.
Ah, the precious years we waste
Leveling what we raised in haste,
Losing what must be undone
Ere content or love is won!
First across the gulf we cast
Kite-borne threads, till lines are passed,
The habit builds the bridge at last!

IN MEMORIAM.

THURSDAY TO THE MEMORY OF MARY REARD.
That passed from this earth
When life seemed so fair—
In the bloom of youth—
A bright crown to wear.
Friends have gathered sweet flowers
To lay on thy breast,
And crowned thy fair brow
In the silence of death.
Thy hands are like lilacs,
So soft and so white,
As they close the sweet flowers
That were once thy delight.
Thy loved ones will miss thee
In the home circle tonight,
When darkness shall sever
The bright orb of light.
Thy youthful companions
That loved thee so well,
Will weep o'er thy grave
When they bid thee farewell.
What depths of sadness
In that word farewell,
Heart's nearly broken
Only can tell.
It leaves aching hearts
And sorrowing tears,
That can never be healed
By the advent of years.
Then, farewell, sweet Mary,
For God, who hath given,
Hath called thee from earth,
To His mansion in Heaven.

A PRESENTATION.

There was a full attendance last night at the meeting of Lincoln Post, and a portion of the time was spent in the presentation of a beautiful memorial from Henderson Post, of Frankfort, Kan. Seven beautiful verses, composed by the adjutant, S. H. Peters, are elegantly engraved on parchment, about two feet by three feet. The memorial is as follows:
Then come, your comrades, gladly,
A mighty stirring host,
Of old historic verse,
The guests of Lincoln Post.
And trills from every quarter
Kept up a ceaseless hum,
Their mighty voices proclaiming:
Hear! They come! They come!
They see the word of "Welcome,"
The warmest they could meet,
Beckoned upon an archway
That spans the busy street;
And every eye proclaimed it,
And every voice proclaimed it,
Did show the warmth of welcome
That reached throughout the land.
The camp was soon a beehive,
With jokes and laughter the rule,
As many waiting Joseph,
Kept saying, "Here's your mate."
While martial airs commingled,
Above the bugles' tone,
We heard the proclamation
Resounding, "Grab a rosette!"
And many women but needing
To hear his thunderous voice,
With comrades there beside them
To fight their battles o'er.
And Gettysburg was pictured,
And each and every plan
Of charge—retreat—and final
Beyond the Rapidan.
Again the Mississippi
Was mingled with her blood,
A crimson from the struggle
That bailed her shores with blood.
While some with song and gesture,
With spirit light and free,
Went with their old commander
In "Marching to the Sea."
The welcome from our governor,
Proceeding from the heart,
A comrade and a leader
Who did so well his part—
Was hailed with joyous greeting,
And many did renew
The pledge of their devotion
To comrades tried and true.
Again they formed in columns,
And some forgot their years,
When friends that filled a city,
Received them with their cheers;
Their paths and altitudes vanished,
And faded eyes grew bright,
In fancy they were pressing
In marches to the fight.
Then to their homes with blessings,
From comrades and from all,
They bade adieu with a promise
To answer to the call
That comes each year to rally,
From forth the ranks of day,
They join their great commander
And comrades now on high.

STOCK-FARMING FACTS.

Points for This Precise Season of the Year in the Buffalo-Grass Belt.
Gleaned Expressly for the Western Kansas World.
There are produced annually in this country about 18,000,000 lambs.
It is now stated that some of the Jersey cows with large records were given six miles of walking exercise daily in order to keep them in good health and promote digestion.
It is estimated that the increase of the corn crop in the South for this year will be 65,000,000 bushels more than the preceding season, which partially compensates for the short cotton crop.
Cleanliness will usually prevent disease in hogs, and too much care with them cannot be exercised. Cholera is a specific poison that is contagious, but is more likely to spread in a filthy pen than under other conditions.
Western farmers have learned to keep their hogs in yards until the dew is off the grass. The theory is that the germs of hog cholera are collected in the dew, and are very liable to be taken by the hog while grazing early in the morning.
Separate the breeding ewes from the rams and wethers and give them a good meal of ground oats at least once a day, so as to have them in the best possible condition when lambing begins, which will add to their production in milk.
It will be profitable to keep a supply of fine, flexible wire, twine, tacks, brads, different sized nails, screws, etc., for the purpose of making immediate repairs. The lack of 5 cents worth of material has often caused a dollar's expenses.
We know not by what authority, but the Indiana Farmer makes the statement that the hens of Kansas yield six times as much as the orchards, eight times as much as the market gardens, and sixteen times as much as the potato fields of the state.
The only truly economical manner of feeding stock, from which the very best and most profitable returns are to be expected, is to convert the grains into

WHIRLPOOL IN WASHINGTON.

Western Kansas World Correspondence.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 23, 1885.
Colonel Robert Ingersoll, the noted lawyer, infidel and lecturer, has just sold his elegant residence on K street to a California millionaire. The price paid for the house was $38,000, and the furniture brought $7,000. Washington residences, no matter how handsome, pass through the house agent's hands. The White House alone is exempt.
There probably never was a cabinet minister or public man here who had so many houses furnished and kept up as Secretary Whitney. He has an elegant one in the most fashionable quarter of New York, another in Lenox, Mass., one out in the country here beyond Georgetown heights, and the Freydinghysen mansion in this city is being fitted up for him. While the latter mentioned is being prepared, the secretary has taken a furnished house on Massachusetts avenue.

The members of the cabinet who will not entertain extensively are Secretary Lamar, Attorney General Garland and Postmaster General Vilas. Secretary Lamar is living in rather modest bachelor quarters upon the sixth floor of the Portland Flats, and can do little beyond giving an occasional dinner to some of his friends. Mr. Garland refuses all kinds of invitations. He makes no calls and receives none except on business. He is especially opposed to dinners. Mr. Vilas is keeping house, and is said to have an independent fortune, but his house is too small for large entertainments.

Secretary Endicott's Washington residence is the one formerly occupied by ex-Senator Pendleton, who is now minister to Germany. It is a handsome house on Sixteenth street, and during Mr. Pendleton's occupancy was famous for its hospitality. If Mr. Endicott keeps up its reputation, so long maintained by the wealthy Ohio senator, he will have a good deal on his hands besides his official duties. Mr. Pendleton always gave one formal dinner a week during the season, and rarely ever dined without a few special guests. And then his house was always open upon two or three evenings every week.

Senator Logan has bought and fitted up for a permanent home an old mansion on Meridian Hill near this city. Mrs. Logan has put a great deal of old-fashioned furniture into it, that has made it look very quaint and home-like without much expense. She has hung up blankets made by the Navajo Indians as portieres. The blankets were not quite long enough for the tall doorways, and Mrs. Logan lengthened them out with macramé fringe, (the ladies will know what it is) made by herself. The floors of the great old rooms are covered with Indian rugs and the skins of wild beasts. She has been hanging up old furniture for a long time. She has a dressing table and bureau that belonged to ex-President Buchanan; a lamp stand used by Henry Clay; a sofa that was once the property of Mr. Silldell, of Mason and Silldell notoriety, besides many other antiques and curiosities.

Probably no member of the Cleveland cabinet is so little known to the public as the secretary of war. Mr. Endicott was a long time making himself felt even in Washington. His order sending certain officers to their regiments, and his brief struggle with General Sheridan were the only incidents of his official career until the contest for the Boston collectorship began. No sooner had his state's interest come up than Secretary Endicott showed all the eagerness of a partisan to control the spoils. In presenting Mr. Saltonstall he dwelt upon his descent, his high position, how he had never been a partisan, and lastly, urged his standing with the Independents. He played upon the president's well-known faith in the Magwumps, and persuaded him to pass by the Democracy of Massachusetts. The secretary of war is much elated over his victory. He has now the contract of carrying Massachusetts next year for the administration as the fulfillment of pledges given in the Saltonstall case.

TO "WORLD" FRIENDS W. F. PAGETT,

EVERYWHERE!
OLD TIMERS
—ALWAYS WANT—
THE "WORLD."
—THEY—
WANT TO SEE ITS CONTENTS.
This fact in connection with the old timers insures the thorough introduction of the
WESTERN KANSAS WORLD
—AMONG—
THE NEW COMERS.
It follows then, that, if anybody has a piece of land to sell
The WORLD is the Medium
—THROUGH WHICH—
To Make the Announcement.
Such is true, of course, as to any thing else which you wish to place on the market.
Paste This in Your Hat, Please!
WANTED.
More Land to Sell. More Customers to Buy.
Having purchased the business of Mr. Stebbins, I wish to add more bargains to this list. Parties placing property in my hands for disposal will find that it will receive my prompt attention. I have School and Deeded Lands and relinquishments for sale. Also town lots.
E. D. WHEELER.
BLACKSMITH SHOP.
[LOCATION CHANGED.]
I now manage the shop which was vacated recently by Joseph Marks.
I am prepared to do Horse-shoeing, repair Wagons, and conduct a General Blacksmithing Business.
Rates reasonable.
BEN JACKSON.
